Jessica Poundstone (born 1976, Portland, Oregon, USA) believes that art is part of a self-care practice that can change the way we see, think and feel. Her work is informed and inspired by color sensation, minimalism and "light and space" art movements. She explores the way color affects us emotionally, combining color, structure and softness to create a space for contemplation, comfort and connection.

Jessica has loved art from an early age, starting to make art full time after a twenty-year career as a business and marketing writer/editor/art director. "I believe that beauty is inherently hopeful. It celebrates the best of what humans can be and do, and connects us to the realm of the deeply true."
